About Killing Brakemen.

The Hartford Courant, in dwelling upon the importance of railroad companies using freight couples of a character that will not endanger the lives of those who are compelled to do the coupling, says:

"Each road that, in this civilized day, contains its brakeman butchery is responsible for it. Nobody denies that the poor fellows are chopped and hacked to pieces woefully every day. Not a morsel of the 'sordidness' to them get into print. Indeed it has been even commented on as remarkable that, whereas in old times brakemen used to work their way up to places of high responsibility, such things now are rare. The present brakemen are said to be rough stuff. There are two good reasons why promotions are less likely than they used to be. One is that the brakeman doesn't live long enough, and the other lies in the 'rough stuff' consideration, but the reason they are the rougher stuff is that they are brutalized by the treatment they get."

"No other branch of industry has expanded so much as freight transportation has with such disastrous results to those personally engaged in it. As a rule, when any occupation grows in importance the circumstances of those engaged in it improve to correspond. In freight transportation this has been reversed, and the brakeman is worse off than he was when it was only beginning. It is all wrong, and in the name of humanity treatment of fellow men something ought to be done to check the present wholesale butchery."

Joe Billings.

The famed writer of the Yankee press is now about six years, and shows it. His hair, which is as long and unkempt as ever, is iron gray, and his staff, drooping mustache is fast changing to the color of old age. As he grows older, he seems to become more and more supremely regardless of persons, surroundings or opinions. As he greets one with a machine-like "How do ye do," or an inanimate "Good day," the impression is conveyed that he has arrived at the state of life and prosperity where he deems fate powerless to work any alteration for worse. Billings is essentially a man to himself, taciturn and unobtrusive everywhere. He is not so popular as formerly, but his work now being that which appears in the New York Weekly. For this service he receives, perhaps, $4,000 a year. His royalty from the circulation of "Prairie Grass," his almanacs and other works swell his yearly income to about $35,000. He is now a willing, but not unobtrusive lecturer, and his services in unpretentious Sixty-third street dwelling house, the garret of which is made to answer the combined purposes of literary sanctum and store house. —From a New York Letter.

TRYING to Be an Honest Toll-Keeper.

"When I went from Carson to Bodie, Col., on horseback," said Major Max, "the road was not very good, the toll-houses on either side were numerous, and when I had traveled a few miles I knew my money would soon give out, as each tollman assessed me from $1 to $6. I resolved to refreshen. The next tollman, who came out on a pair of stilts, yelled out 'Foot or horseback?' 'Foot,' says I, although I knew my horse was still under me, for I could see his ears stick up above the mud once in a while. Well, in that way I escaped payment for a long time, tolling the tollmen, whether they asked me or not, that I was traveling afoot. Everything went smoothly until at a toll-house where a big, burly rascal came out on stilts and carrying a shot-gun. Just as I had assured him I was afoot, the mustang I rode stretched his whole head out of the mud for a breath of air. I never felt so mortified in my life, but I could not blame the horse, for it hadn't taken a breath for forty miles. The man leveled his gun at me and remarked: 'You a nice party to try and beat an honest tollkeeper? You a bad lot of fellows to go out of $10. How do you expect we're going to keep this road in order if we don't get paid for it?'

The Peigler's sad fate.

A New York Heard correspondent interviewed the once famous pugilist, Mike McCool, in New Orleans. The old ex-champion thus stated his experience:

"This prize-fighting profession is a bad business, anyhow. A man is bound to lose his fight some day if he keeps at it, and then his friends are sure to desert him at the last and worst part of his life, which is just the time he will need them most. I know all about that, and feel it more and more every day I live. When I was at the top of my glory and had never been whipped I had all sorts of good things put upon me, and that, too, oftentimes, when I didn't want them, and now I could hardly get a good dinner to eat to beg the horses for it, and there is not one of them that would care to lend me a dime. Not one of them will ever believe it that a poor devil may be fairly and squarely whipped without any track in the master. It is the back of the favorite. Let the favorite be, and nobody has the same confidence in the favorite again. I am now steamboating on the river, and shall stick to that as long as I live."

The Conundrum Explained.

"How do you come to ask six dollars for that load of firewood, when John Smith your neighbor, offers the same kind of wood for four dollars?" was the question Gilhooly asked of the man in charge of a load of fire in Austin.

"Well, you see I am going to be indicted for stealing this wood, and I will have to pay a lawyer to prove my innocence. That's why I have to charge two dollars a load extra."

"Doesn't John Smith steal his wood, too?"

"Certainly he does. He cuts it off the same track he had where I got this."

"Well, doesn't he have to hire a lawyer to prove his innocence?"

"Of course not. He is never indicted by the Grand Jury,"

"Why don't the Grand Jury indict him?"

"Because he's always appointed foremen. He has got more influence than I have." —Texas Sun.

A Change of Policy.

The news from England is of the most important character, being no less than an announcement that the government has changed its policy towards Ireland, by abandoning the attempt to enforce the co-operation act, by releasing the three imprisoned members of parliament, Parnell, Dillon and O'Kelly, and by the introduction of measures calculated to remedy the abuses in the administration of justice in Ireland. Five "suspects" have been released from a single prison, and Gladstone announces that all of this class of prisoners will be released except those suspected of being personally concerned in outrages. As an earnest of the intentions of the government Earl Cowper has resigned the lord lieutenancy of Ireland, and W. E. Forster, the chief secretary of Ireland in the Queen's cabinet, has also resigned. This can mean nothing less than a radical change of policy, and it is so regarded throughout Ireland, where the views is hailed with the most extravagant demonstration of delight—by illuminations, processions, bonfires and general rejoicing. The land league has gained its first great victory, and it is richly entitled to the thanks of the Irish people.

Slightly Off.

The editor of the Monticello Herald is a member of the house of representatives, and while he is in Springfield attending to his official duties his paper is left to the tender mercies of some irresponsible and care-free creature, who plays sad havoc with election returns. In making up a table of the vote cast in 1880 by the five counties composing the new fourteenth congressional district, this sub-editor arrives at the astonishing conclusion that Garfield had a plurality of 6,602 over Hancock, and a majority of 5,655 over all opposition in the counties of McLean, Logan, DeWitt and Piatt. This remarkable triumph of arithmetic skill is reached through a tabulated statement of the vote in which two counties are correctly reported, and in the other three the Hancock vote is put down at figures far below those contained in the official report. The vote cast in these counties in 1880, according to the Tribune Almanac, was as follows:

Garfield	Hancock	Ward
2011	1843	16
2729	2867	12
3440	3609	13
3447	3227	35
3555	3578	16
11,329	14,381	97

This gives a plurality of 2,978 for Garfield, over Hancock, and a majority of 2,031 over all opposition.

ALEXANDER II, of Russia, succeeded to the throne Feb. 18 (March 2, new style), 1855, but was not crowned at Moscow until Aug. 26 (Sept. 7, 1856). It is now formally announced that Alexander III. will be crowned at Moscow in August, or in the same month that his father was. It is further announced that the festivities will continue only two weeks, and that the expense will be 8,000,000 rubles less than twenty-six years ago. This rather peculiar parade of pretense of economy may not strike the citizens of Moscow favorably, as they, like the people of some other localities, are not averse to public money being spent freely among them. The coronation will take place in the Cathedral of the Assumption of the Kremlin, one of the richest buildings in decoration in the world, and the ceremonies will be of the most imposing description.

ALEX. H. STEPHENS says he considers Attorney General Brewster—whom he has known since the war—the ablest man who has held that position since William Wirt held it.

There are a little particular about their girls—the young men of Indiana are; down near Lafayette, a young farmer, when returning from hunting, discovered a neighbor's son promenading with his fiancee, with his arm around her waist. He yelled at them. The couple looked around. The girl stood still, but the neighbor's son took to the woods, and is now picking the bird shot out of his legs.

A GREAT multitude gathered in Atlanta to see an incendiary fire. Mr. Joiner had announced that at a certain hour he would burn Mr. Shean's house. The police stretched a rope to keep back the crowd and the fire department was on hand. When the appointed time came, Joiner poured kerosene oil over the floors of the building, and piled bundles of paper in the basement. Shean forbade him to do it, and threatened him with legal punishment; but he would not stop, and a match soon set the structure ablaze. The police did nothing, and the firemen simply prevented the flames from igniting the adjoining buildings. It may be well to add that there had been cases of small pox in the house, and urged that he desist, lest he lay himself liable for cruelty to animals.

Gen. Sherman's reception at Tombstone, Arizona, was unique but interesting. A cowboy individual rode up to his carriage and asked if Gen. Sherman was there. Being answered in the affirmative, he pulled a pistol and fired two shots in rapid succession. That was the signal for a volley, and for a few minutes the air vibrated with the sharp report of pistol shots, bursting of anvils and Odessa rockets.

A TERRIBLE war, begun by a goat's devoring the garments of its owner's neighbor, has been raging the past five years between two Pennsylvania families. Mr. Marshall, finding that his wardrobe was gradually being exhausted in the process of fattening Brophy's goats, shot one of them and threw it into his neighbor's yard. After Marshall had lain in bed for two or three days to repair the damages which Brophy inflicted upon him the morning after the affray with the goat, he had Brophy arrested and bound over to keep the peace. The goat brought to take the place of the murdered animal had a fierce love of literature. The ordinary theater poster was hardly equal to the gratification of his cultured tastes, and he accordingly addicted himself to the consumption of Marshall's morning newspaper. This ended in the goat's taking home in his back a sample of Marshall's ammunition, for which Brophy had Marshall arrested. In 1878 Brophy was arrested for thrashing Marshall, but the cause being dismissed, five of a herd of Brophy's goats suddenly died. A post-mortem examination revealed an undigested hat and an old boot, which could not fairly be assigned as the cause of death, but Marshall was arrested, and, when discharged, brought suit for damages against Brophy. In 1879 a dead goat, broken windows and the thrashing of a young Brophy were the only incidents which disturbed the peace of the two families. In 1880 all was peace. They were both under bonds for good behavior. In 1881 Marshall bought a cow, which, tortured by hunger during the drought last summer, seized a young Brophy in its mouth and carried him triumphantly around the village by the sup perfidious slack of his skirts. Brophy swore that he would murder the cow and Marshall penned it up in a wooden cage. Two encounters this last winter between Brophy and Marshall put them under bonds again, and Brophy is now in court defending a suit of $5,000 damages for scalping Marshall's cow.

Mr. Brewers, of Michigan, made a good speech in the house this morning on the tariff commission bill. He banged the Democrats very hard for their inconsistent course, and closed by reading Hancock's letter on the tariff question, in which he says that free trade talk is folly, and that Eaton's commission bill, practically the one now under discussion, is the proper solution of the question. The Democrats were a good deal annoyed, and the few of them who sat it out looked exceedingly sharp during the talk of Hancock. The Republicans enjoyed it hugely, and added to the effect of pretended surprise and ejaculations of "What?" and other expressions of astonishment as remarkable passages in the letter were read. He rubbed it in very hard toward the close, quoting Hancock's interview which referred to the tariff as a merely local question which was once discussed in his native place, and kept it up until Mr. Moore, of Tennessee, rose, amid bursts of loud laughter from the Republican side, and urged that he desist, lest he lay himself liable for cruelty to animals.

Sudden Death of Horace Maynard.

Washington Notes.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 3.—The senate was in session long enough to concur with the house in the adoption of the resolutions relative to the death of General Hurbut and adjourned to 3 p.m.

The house held the most exciting session had since the regular session. The first thing brought up was the motion made Saturday by Mr. Parish, to recall the senate apportionment bill to a second reading. This motion was objected to by the democrats, and an appeal taken from the speaker's decision. The chair was sustained—16 to 0. The motion to vote, but failed to break the quorum. The bill was then called back to a second reading by 77 republicans, the democrats not voting.

Mr. Parish then offered the amendment adopted by the house republicans in caucus yesterday. The democrats attempted to have action postponed, but failed by a vote of 58 to 77.

From this time on the utmost confusion and excitement prevailed. Mr. Herrington objected to the amendment on the ground that the bill had not been recalled for the purpose of amendment.

The speaker said it had, but Herrington declared that he was near Parish, and that he had not made that statement.

Parish stated that he had made the statement distinctly, and then the racket commenced.

During the subsequent proceedings, Parish went to Herrington's seat and told him he was mistaken. To this Herrington replied by striking Parish a severe blow full in the face. They were immediately separated, and Herrington afterwards apologized to the house for his conduct.

The democratic dilatory motions were finally cut off by Collins, of Cook, who moved the previous question.

This was ordered by the republicans by 77 votes, and after a protracted contest, the amendments as a whole were adopted, receiving the votes of all republicans, except Stowell, of Marshall, and Okeson, of McLean.

This was not accomplished without a succession of contests between the speaker and the democrats. Numerous appeals from the speaker's decision were made, and a series of exciting scenes occurred. When the amendments had been adopted, the speaker decided that the previous question applied also to the pending motion to order the bill to a third reading.

At this the democrats raised another great rumpus. An appeal being taken, the speaker's decision was sustained—75 to 55.

The bill was then ordered to a third reading by a party vote—ayes, 77; noes, 55.

Parish rose to a question of privilege, and stated the circumstances of his difficulty with Herrington. He said he looked upon Herrington's action as cowardly and ungentlemanly, and unworthy a member, and asked the appointment of a committee to investigate the affair. This was agreed to, and the house adjourned till morning.

The house will pass the bill as amended to-morrow, and it will go to the senate. In its present shape it does not suit the republican senators, but the chances are that they will have to accept the house amendments, and that the bill will become a law this week in its present shape.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.—Some of the strongest opponents of the Chinese bill say they believe the president will veto the bill as it passed the house last night; but it is generally believed he will concede something and sign it, rather than endanger the party's chances on the Pacific coast by further delay.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 3.—HOD. Horace Maynard died suddenly this morning of heart disease. He got out of bed, telling his wife he felt unwell, and then dropped dead on the floor.

[Horace Maynard was born at Westborough, Mass., August 30, 1814; graduated at Amherst College 1833; removed to Tennessee, and studied law in Knoxville; was Professor in the University of East Tennessee; was attorney general of the state from 1863 to 1865; was presidential elect in 1852 and 1856; was elected to the 35th, 36th, 37th, 38th, 40th, 41st, 42d and 43d congresses. Was appointed minister to Turkey by General Grant in 1875, and subsequently was postmaster general in Hayes' cabinet, being succeeded in office by Thomas L. James.]

The debtor's room in the DeWitt county jail has been selected as the place of Patsey Devine's execution. The day of the hanging of this noted criminal is Friday, May 12th. It is not at all probable that the "affianced bride," Lizzie Barton, will have an opportunity of witnessing the exercises which will send her Patsey into eternity. She is held a prisoner here for grand larceny, and will have to draw on her imagination on the 12th as to what is transpiring in Clinton on that day.

Dr. Vincent's Lecture on "That Boy."

Dr. Dio Lewis says: "I heard him at Oakland, California; it was a great surprise to me. I have heard all the distinguished lectures for thirty years, but I have never heard a lecture containing so much humor, sense and heart as this one. It is wonderfully funny, and yet that word don't hit exactly. It is extremely brilliant, but that is not the word. It contains a sense of a hundred ordinary lectures, but not one of his hearers last night would have been satisfied with this lecture. It was crowded with the yearning and pity and tears and Christ love of the father and the man." Dr. Vincent will lecture at the First M. E. Church on Tuesday evening, May 16th. Admission, 25 cents.

ANNUAL REPORT OF CITY TREASURER.

To the Hon. Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Decatur:

The undersigned respectfully submits herewith a report of all receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year ending April 2nd, 1882:

CLOCKS

CHEAP FOR A FEW DAYS.

We are about to REFIT OUR ENTIRE STORE. New Wall Cases will be put in on both sides, in order to give us a great deal more show case room than we now have.

Our new Cases will be ready April 15th; our old ones are sold and part of them shipped. We have either to sell off all CLOCKS and SILVERWARE, or else pile them up in the back room for three weeks.

We therefore will offer a discount of 10 per cent from the price of ALL CLOCKS, CASTERS, ICE PITCHERS, CAKE BASKETS, TEA SETS and all kinds of SILVERWARE bought of us between now and April 15th, 1882.

This 10 per cent discount will be given off from prices already lower than can be found in Decatur. If you think of getting a Clock, or any article of Silverware soon, it will pay you to buy now.

When our store is completed, we will be better able to display lots of goods we have been obliged to keep in drawers and the safe, and intend to enlarge our already large variety of goods.

Yours Respectfully,

OTTO E. CURTIS & CO.,

Mr. GEORGE NICHOLS has had his express wagon fixed up in grand shape for the spring and summer campaign. It was handsomely painted at David F. Hamsher's shops on Wood street.

MANY an able-bodied man, receiving more than $1.75 per day for manual and skilled labor, has had his phiz in justice's shops and has been find the usual $3.00 and trimmings. For proof of this statement see the record.

At the Presbyterian strawberry festival at the church to-morrow evening the ladies will serve strawberry short cake, hot, between 8 and 9 o'clock. The public generally is cordially invited to patronize this affair. Go early and stay late.

There is talk that the Mattoon coal shaft will be abandoned for a time. Sorry for the good people of Mattoon. They have had watched bad luck in their repeated searches for coal. They ought not to get discouraged. Try, try again.

THE enterprise of making brick by machinery recently inaugurated by Roach, Mollenhoff & Lunn, proves to be a confessed success. Their drying process works like a charm. They will commence baking a kiln in a short time.

THE Lizzie Barton examination yesterday attracted a considerable number of curious listeners and spectators. The main desire of the crowd was to have a good look at the female who writes love-letters to Patsy Devine, the condemned murderer.

"It is not my intention to flatter you," said a visitor to the village gossip, "but you always want to hear the latest news, I don't mind telling you that Mrs. Blodger says you remind her of the Mississippi river." "Indeed," added the hostess, "and why does she think I am like that noble stream?" "Because your mouth is always open."

THE Decatur Bed Stockings base ball club held a meeting at the Eldorado house last evening, and effected a permanent organization by the election of officers whose names were published in these columns a week ago. The club, as then stated, have leased the Berry Cassell vacant lot on East William street, which will be fitted up at once for use.

On yesterday afternoon Mr. Abram Kramer experienced a heavy fall at Kramer & McClelland's carriage manufactory on the corner of East Main and Franklin streets. He accidentally fell through an elevator opening from the upper story to the first floor below, a distance of about 12 feet. In the fall he jarred himself considerably, and suffered a fracture of the small bone of the left forearm. Dr. Walston was summoned by telephone to the relief of Mr. Kramer, whose arm had swollen rapidly and was causing him great pain.

LIZZIE'S DASHES FOR LIBERTY.

The Commercial House Clothing Thief and Her Attempts to Give the Officer the Slip.

On yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the case of The People vs. Lizzie Barton, arrested by Marshal Hewes on complaint of J. B. Traylor for stealing $40 worth of clothing from the Commercial hotel on Monday evening, March 27th, came up for trial before Justice Corley. On motion of the defendant the trial was had before Justice Corley, the case being taken there on a change of venue. The people were represented by W. C. Johns, no one appearing for the defendant, who sat demurely in her chair with a half-face veil covering her features down to the tip of her nose. At first Lizzie desired a continuance until Monday next, but when she learned that an affidavit from her would be necessary she said, "Well, it don't make any difference; go on with the trial." The witness who testified for the people were Sudie Goodpasture, Nellie Rockwell, former attaches of the Commercial hotel, and Marshal Hewes. The evidence substantiated in substance the account of the theft as has been heretofore detailed in these columns, which was that the goods stolen were taken away by Lizzie Barton and left by her at her mother's home in Wapello. The goods were in the court room and each article was identified by Misses Goodpasture and Rockwell, the owners of the same. The prisoner had no witnesses to introduce and had nothing whatever to say in her own defense, except that she had told Marshal Hewes where the goods could be found, with the understanding that they were to be returned to the girls from whom they had been taken—the inference being that she (Lizzie) would therupon be discharged from further custody. This ended the examination, and the justice held the prisoner to await the action of the May grand jury for grand larceny in the sum of $50, in default of which amount Lizzie was committed to the custody of Marshal Hewes to be escorted back to the county jail.

DECATOR'S NEEDS.

More Homes for the Mechanics and Citizens.

Never in the history of Decatur has there been in such a short period as many buildings sold as during the few months past, the majority of which have been purchased by persons of moderate means, all having in view the building of a home. In most cases the purchasers have means to commence, but not sufficient to complete their buildings, being hopeful of obtaining loans for the completion. In this they seem to be doomed to disappointment, as our moneyed men and capitalists all seem reluctant to come forward and make advances on this kind of security, ample as it is. This is a matter that concerns every business man and property-owner in Decatur, and one that should excite every one to some action to promote the growth and prosperity that now awaits our city. Right now is an institution that can and will accomplish this great end, if each one will do his part. We refer to the Loan and Building Associations.

Such institutions have been the means of building many of the Eastern cities and towns, and can be made the means of doing the same for Decatur. All that is needed is the hearty co-operation of every business man and manufacturer in the city. Let each one take stock in the two Building Associations of this city, and contribute their mite monthly in the way of dues. The amount, although small to each one will be in the aggregate large, and will be the means of adding from 75 to 100 houses and homes to the city of Decatur inside of the next year. The stock always pays a liberal interest, therefore a good investment. By furnishing homes for the masses you make your population permanent, and not fluctuating, as is the case where people have no homes or ties to bind them to the place they are in. Every mechanic and citizen in the city is a producer and consumer, and always spends his money at home. Let every one consider the matter and take every action, giving our city a further boom in improvements. Philadelphia is called the City of Homes. Every merchant there has his home, all brought about through the means of building and loan associations.

THIRD TO ESCAPE.

Of course there was a large crowd of spectators in the court room to gaze upon the celebrated female, and as she was led out and down the stairway by the marshal the curious ambled along behind. Lizzie, who seemed to be in considerable of a pet, drew her shawl tightly about her shoulders and walked along beside the officer, having little to say. She appeared as gentle as the meekest lamb, and the trip from Linn & Scruggs' corner on the east side of Water street south to the Wood street crossing was made without any trouble. On arriving at this crossing, which was partly covered with mud, the marshal, as is always customary with officers of the law, permitted the prisoner to go on before, he following close behind. On reaching the jail-yard corner, just as Mr. Hewes had caught hold of Lizzie's left arm, she suddenly jerked away, made a long "Rescue" jump, and started off down the sidewalk as rapidly as she could run, and she made surprisingly fast time. Lizzie had a start of about twenty feet, but Mr. Hewes was not discouraged and he humped himself as a crack foot-runner might have done on a 100 yards' race, but he was handicapped by a heavy overcoat which he pulled off as he ran and cast it aside. Down the walk dashed the fleet-footed Lizzie and after her, like a ball fired out of a canon, came the marshal his overcoat which he threw over his left arm. The people laughed heartily at the incident and even the prisoners in the jail cheered and the grand jury next week, in case an examination is had this week.

PLEADED GUILTY.

This forenoon the case of the City of Decatur against Robert Brown, arrested on a charge of selling liquor without license, came up for trial before Justice Lowry. The city was represented by City Attorney Hutchison, and Thomas Lee appeared for the defendant. The prisoner pleaded guilty to one charge, and the Justice promptly fined him $25 and costs, and ordered him to stand committed until the fine and costs are paid. Brown paid the costs and will probably give security for the fine to escape imprisonment with the chain gang attachment. Mr. Brown stated in open court that he intends leaving the country.

CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

I desire to inform the general public that I have disposed of my entire stock of groceries, etc., at No. 37 North Church street, to Messrs. Gher & Shaw, who will continue the same business at the old stand, in connection with which they will also establish a complete meat market.

As is known to the people of this community I have been engaged in the grocery business in this city for a period of eight years, and I take pleasure in introducing to the public my successors as men of sterling integrity and competent business men, deserving of a liberal patronage.

May 4, 1882. E. PRATT.

WEBSTER STREET WEDDING.

An interesting marriage, of special interest to Decatur's colored population, occurred last evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride on South Webster street. The contracting parties were Mrs. Anna Hutchinson, sister of Mr. Isaac Rogan, of this city, and Rev. Isaac Johnson, a colored Baptist evangelist from Kentucky. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a number of friends by Rev. Fleming Gray, late pastor of the African Baptist church of Decatur.
